DRIVER'S SEAT

When it comes to symbols of excess, affluence, and influence, six driven wheels on your daily driver have become the new scissor doors. Back in the day, the vertical lift of a Lamborghini's door instantly telegraphed your place in the social hierarchy: at the top. In today's car culture, its six wheels on a car otherwise meant to operate with four.

The recently introduced Brabus XLP 900 6X6 is that kind of statement piece. Beginning life as an already impressive Mercedes-AMG G63, the XLP 900 6X6 is the result of some mad scientists at Brabus being given carte blanche to develop the ultimate truck. That's right, this thing has a bed despite the donor vehicle being a fully enclosed SUV. I suppose making it a pickup is small potatoes after you've already decided to add a third driven axle.

We chose the XLP 900 6X6 as this month's cover car because it reminds us of what we love about duPont REGISTRY: turning the page and being arrested by a picture of a car for sale that's wilder than we could have ever imagined. And yet it exists, and it's for sale. That's the feeling it gives us, and you can read the rest of the story on Brabus' brutish six-wheeled Mercedes-Benz with a bed on page 14.

This month's other feature car is entirely different. The Rolls-Royce Spectre is arguably the most significant product the luxury car maker has ever built, although it looks similar enough to the Phantom Coupe it replaces that you might mix up the two. You can't tell at first glance that enclosed within is the marque's first all-electric powertrain. Will the Spirit of Ecstasy faithful embrace the brand's electrified future? We'll tell you why they should on page 22.

We also spent some seat time with the new BMW M2, an engaging, charming, and decidedly unexpected creation from the people who brought you the 2002. The M2 is a hell of a fun ride, and its front end lacks the oversized double kidney grille that's appeared on so many other BMWs lately and roiled the brand's user base. We have nothing to complain about regarding the M2, yet we still have many things to say, which you can read on page 28.

It's also that time of year to start thinking about Monterey Car Week on the California coast. Book your lodging and transportation early, and don't forget to wander through the event's parking lots for the best unofficial car show you could ever attend. We've got more tips on how to prep for Pebble Beach on page 46, as well as a look back at the most expensive auctions ever hosted at Monterey.

We end this month's issue with an important piece on watch safes. God forbid the worst case scenario happens and a burglar is standing in your bedroom wondering what to take. On page 70, we show you some options that will ensure your watch collection doesn't make his list.

Summer's almost over, but rather than dwell on where you'll go this year when the weather turns, how about sitting back and enjoying the final rays of summer on a beach chair reading this month's issue of duPont REGISTRY? Maybe you'll turn a page and be stopped by something special you've never seen before.

Tapping into the automotive luxury market, BRABUS has unveiled a trail-blazer in high-performance pickups — the BRABUS XLP 900 6x6 Superblack. Built around the Mercedes-AMG G 63, this extraordinary pickup defies the ordinary with its innovative design, superior off-road capabilities, and exceptional BRABUS Masterpiece interior.

As the name suggests, the BRABUS XLP 900 6x6 Superblack is a massive six-wheeler pickup. At 20.275 feet long and 6.86 feet wide, it throws around considerable size. Concealed under its transparent PowerView hood cowl, the pickup wields a BRABUS Rocket 900 4.5-literV8 twin-turbo engine.

Equipped with high-performance turbochargers, it generates an output of 900 horsepower and a peak torque of 922 pound-feet, electronically limited to 774 pound-feet in the vehicle. Mated to the engine is a nine-speed transmission and six-wheel drive, all of which allow the pickup to propel from 0 to 62 mph in 5.2 seconds. The top speed electronically caps at 130 mph. This powerful engine also benefits from the BRABUS stainless high-performance exhaust system, providing a guttural V8 sound in "Sport" mode or a subtle whisper in "Coming Home" mode.

Beyond a remarkable engine, the Superblack also impresses with its off-road prowess. An elongated ladder frame houses a pickup body and an additional rear axle, resulting in an increased ground clearance of 18.6 inches. Paired with the independent suspensions on the rear axles, the design enhances the vehicle's off-road performance. It runs

THE SUPERBLACK LABEL NOT ONLY REPRESENTS THE GLOSSY BLACK VEHICLE BODY, BUT ALSO THE LUXE BRABUS MASTERPIECE INTERIOR.

A hard-edged exterior belies a deliciously luxurious interior. Black stitching accents a triangle quilting pattern that brings character to the seats, door panels, and footwells. Elsewhere, an embossed 77 pattern nods to the automaker's founding year.

The Superblack label not only represents the glossy black vehicle body, but also the luxe BRABUS Masterpiece interior, decked in the finest Mondial Black leather with gray piping and carbon elements.

All 6x6 trucks require serious strength, and BRABUS took care of that as the custom steel module for the chassis retains the high torsional rigidity of the stock frame. The vehicle's running boards facilitate access at a considerable step-in height, while LED lights integrated into the fender flares illuminate the running boards, providing enhanced safety.

The XLP 900 6x6 Superblack sports six tailor-made wheels, custom-designed for the eight-lug bolt pattern of the portal axles. Along with the wide flares and carbon-fiber trim, the truck's sides are marked by carbon-fiber trim behind the wheel arches. Its rear end incorporates a Widerstar fascia with a carbon skid plate, perfectly integrating with the flares on the left and right.

Renowned for its high-performance vehicles and professional automotive tuning, BRABUS has a long-standing reputation dating back to its foundation in 1977. The BRABUS XLP 900 6x6 Superblack, part of the Monochrome Design series, builds upon this legacy, achieving a new height in the exclusive vehicle fleets of automotive connoisseurs worldwide.

The BRABUS XLP900 6x6 Superblack stands as a true embodiment of power, performance, and luxury. It sets a new benchmark for luxury trucks, redefining the segment with its unrivaled capabilities, luxurious interior, and an engine that delivers a driving performance one would hardly expect from a pickup. Indeed, the BRABUS XLP900 6x6 Superblack proves that a truck can be a supercar, pushing the boundaries of what is possible in automotive engineering.

THE NEXT STEP

Rolls-Royce enters the all-electric vehicle game with a super coupé that seizes the ideas of seclusion, silence, and pure comfort.

WORDS: Gabriel Vega Cortés

Rolls-Royce has spent billions developing a range of vehicles as comfortable, quiet, and opulent as a car can be. However, regardless of how much sound deadening you throw at an internal combustion engine, it will always produce noise, even if just a low, distant rumble.

The next logical step in search of a genuinely silent driving experience would be to ditch the ICE entirely in favor of electric motors and batteries, precisely what the 2024 Rolls-Royce Spectre did. Whereas other carmakers seek electric power primarily for the environmental benefit, the Spectre leans on its new power-train in pursuit of the marque's core goals.

If Rolls-Royce envisions complete seclusion from the outside world, the Spectre may be the best solution to hit the market.

The most significant change surrounding the Spectre is that it's an electric car, but you'd be hard-pressed to tell just by looking at it. Rather than playing into a futuristic aesthetic, Rolls-Royce chose to stick to the tall, upright proportions that give their line its distinct appearance — even retaining a long hood despite the lack of a big engine underneath.

The Spectre counts on two separately excited synchronous motors, one in each axle, making it all-wheel drive. Combined, the pair produce 584 horsepower and 664 pound-feet of torque, with most of the power coming from the rear.

The biggest differentiator is the Spectre's curb weight figure, which, thanks to a 1,543-pound battery pack, is now a hefty 6,371 pounds. (That's 617 pounds heavier than a Phantom.) The carmaker combats this weight gain by distributing the weight of the batteries evenly through the floor while keeping the center of gravity low.

As with all Rolls-Royce vehicles, artisandetailing and premium materials elevate the Spectre to a class of its own. This model is a step toward the marque's plan to electrify its portfolio by 2030.

Contrary to what you'd expect from an EV, the Spectre doesn't hand over all its power the instant you press the right pedal. Instead, it's tuned to prioritize smoothness, only delivering a good grunt once you lean into it. Even its regenerative braking mode, which allows for single-pedal driving, prioritizes a seamless stop.

When stepping inside, the first detail that strikes you is the size of the doors. They're the largest ever fitted to a Rolls-Royce, and they house its latest lighting feature — starlight doors. They're an evolution on the brand's well-known starlight roof, and they add 4,796 stars to the interior's lower section. The illuminated Spectre nameplate on the dashboard adds another 5,500 stars, making the cabin feel like a spectacular, starry night once the sun sets.

This model starts at $420,000. Once loaded with optional extras, the brand's first EV can easily fall between $500,000 and $600,000 when it arrives toward the end of this year. According to Rolls-Royce, the first two years of production are already sold out, with current delivery times estimated to be sometime in 2025.

The Spectre may be the brand's first electric car, but the idea of a silent and potent powertrain fits Rolls-Royce's mission. It represents the logical next step for a marque that over-engineers all its models to be as quiet and comfortable as possible. The fact that the Spectre is electric isn't the big story. What matters is how this new technology pushes this fastback into a realm of its own, setting a benchmark in luxury in the process.

The 2023 BMW M2 proves bigger is better and can also be more refined.

WORDS: Gabriel Vega Cortés

When the M2 debuted in 2015, it created a sweet spot within BMW's M lineup. It was small, relatively light, and plenty powerful with a whiff of classic BMW about it. The German carmaker built a great sports car banking on its time-honored formula. Its replacement, the 2023 BMW M2, moves closer to the M3 and M4. It's larger, heavier, and packs a heavier punch than its predecessor.

The M2 grew substantially as it evolved into this latest generation. It is 4.1 inches longer, 1.3 inches wider, and 0.3 inches lower than the carit replaced. It's now essentially a shortened M4, with a matching track width and a 4.3-inch shorter wheelbase. With this growth spurt comes extra weight. Equipped with an eight-speed automatic, M's smallest offering tips the scales at 3,867 pounds.

Thankfully, its power output also rose significantly, now developing 453 horsepower and 406 pound-feet of torque from a twin-turbocharged 3.0-liter straight-six. An auto-equipped M2 will sprint to 60 mph in 3.9 seconds and top out at 177 mph when upgraded with the optional M Driver's Package.

On the road, the latest M2 is outrageously fast, incredibly capable, and more refined than ever. It's arguably at its best with only a few options, like my tester. Even stock suspension and tire setup are enough to keep up with cars that cost twice as much. Through the tightest bends, the M2 remains planted and stable, carrying surprising speed, and the limits are much higher than those of its forerunner. If speed is all that matters, the latest is the greatest.

But speed isn't everything, and when it comes to driver enjoyment, this M2 is perhaps too grown up, dialed in, and refined. Its predecessor presented a challenge with an overactive rear end that's completely gone. On the plus side, this makes the 2023 M2 the easiest to live with. Day to day, its comfort improvements don't go unnoticed and yield no performance losses. The newcomer is still a great car, just different.

Inside, the latest M2 flaunts an almost identical interior to the larger M3 and M4, combining a 12.3-inch instrument cluster with a 14.9-inch infotainment display running the latest iDrive system. Even its steering wheel carries over, although the paddle shifters are smaller. The stock seats ensure comfort with enough lateral hold for a twisty road. (Even after years of riding in carbon-fiber buckets, I have yet to love them. Comfort seats are the way to go.)

The 2023 BMW M2 starts at $63,195, including a $995 destination fee, making it a bargain within the M lineup. My tester was very lightly optioned, coming in at $66,945.

Given its sizing, refinement, and performance improvements, the M2 is now closer than ever to the M4, costing almost $10,000 less. It represents a sweet spot within the brand's lineup, delivering a driving experience that's impressive from a speed standpoint and somehow more luxurious than ever.

It's only part of what makes these cars buzzworthy.

WORDS: Tyler Rampersaud

There's nothing quite like a collector car auction, and Monterey Car Week features some of the most exciting auctions in the automotive sector. It's a time when the world's greatest collectors gather in one place to be celebrated; and with so many notable cars crossing the block, there's a lot of money changing hands. Here are some of the most expensive cars sold at previous iterations of Monterey Car Week, according to Hammer Price.

TEN 1970 PORSCHE 917K, GOODING & CO., 2017

The 10th highest seller is a racing legend, the Porsche 917K. The light blue and orange Gulf-liveried car sold for an incredible $14.08 million.

1966 FERRARI 275 GTB/C, GOODING & CO., 2017

At the same auction and on the same day, another racing giant sold, this time from Ferrari. It fetched a price of $14.52 million.

EIGHT 1995 MCLAREN F1, BONHAMS, 2017

Whenitwasintroduced, the McLaren F1 reigned as the world's fastest production car with a top speed that exceeded 240 mph. Its rarity and daring innovation make it a collector master piece to this day, which is why it sold for $15.62 million.

SEVEN 1994 MCLAREN F1 "LM SPECIFICATION", RM SOTHEBY'S, 2019

Another McLaren F1 sold at an incredible price at Monterey Car Week, this time an example of the F1's racing prowess and legacy. This 1994 McLaren F1 fetched $19.805 million.

SIX 1995 MCLAREN F1, GOODING & CO., 2021

The third and final McLaren F1 in this list features a stunning Creighton Brown exterior with a complementary Tanand Brazilian Brown interior. It sold for $20.465 million.

1963 ASTON MARTIN DP215, RMSOTHEBY'S, 2018

Racing is where some of the greatest automotive legacies are built, and that's proven in the fact that so many exorbitant auction prices are paid for race cars, like the 1963 Aston Martin DP215, which garnered an impressive $21.455 million.

1935 DUESENBERG SSJ, GOODING & CO., 2018

Only two SSJs were ever made, this one being formerly owned by actor Gary Cooper. Its $22 million price made it the most expensive American car ever sold.

THREE

1955 FERRARI 410 SPORT SPIDER, RM SOTHEBY'S, 2022

The 2022 auctions awone of the highest sales at Monterey Car Week, with a classic '50s Ferrari racer crossing the block at the RM Sotheby's auction. The car sold for $22.005 million.

TWO 1956 ASTON MARTIN DBR1, RM SOTHEBY'S, 2017

This beautiful car won Le Mans in 1959. As such, it sold at Monterey Car Week in 2017 for a whopping $22.550 million.

ONE FERRARI 250 GTO, RM SOTHEBY'S, 2018

The Ferrari 250 GTO is an incredibly rare and iconic specimen with some of the world's greatest racing pedigree, hence an eyewatering sale price at the top of our list: $48.405 million.

MAXIMIZE YOUR VALUE

How to prep your automobile for auction.

WORDS: Jordan Aquistapace

In recent years, the luxury automotive world has witnessed a remarkable surge in the popularity of high-end auction events as a means of buying and selling valuable and collectible vehicles. These auctions have become a magnet for passionate collectors, investors, and enthusiasts, offering a captivating blend of prestige, exclusivity, and the thrill of acquiring extraordinary automotive treasures.

From vintage classics like the Ferrari 250 GTO to cutting-edge supercars such as Bugatti's Chiron Super Sport, these auctions have transformed into grand spectacles that celebrate the art, heritage, and excitement of owning some of the most coveted vehicles in existence. As we continue to explore the captivating rise of high-end automotive auctions, sellers should complete these essential steps to ensure an honest and profitable sale of their most prized possessions.

Properly servicing your collectible automobile before listing it in an auction event is the most important step of all. Not only does it enhance the vehicle's performance and longevity, but it also significantly increases its market value. Thorough maintenance ensures that the car is in optimal condition, attracting potential buyers and instilling confidence in their purchase. In addition to comprehensive engine tune-ups and addressing any mechanical issues on your supercar or hypercar, detailed service records help to add value and peace of mind for the future owner. By prioritizing service and providing thorough records, you maximize the chances of achieving a successful and lucrative sale.

Clean/Detail

Before preparing to list your car, investing in a professional interior and exterior detail is crucial. By restoring your collector car's appearance to showroom condition, you significantly increase the chances of grabbing the attention of eager bidders. A thorough interior cleaning will eliminate signs of wear and tear, creating a welcoming atmosphere for potential buyers. On the outside, a meticulous wash, wax, and/or paint correction accentuates design and highlights exterior features. This attention to detail not only enhances the overall presentation but also indicates your quality of care and maintenance, instilling confidence in potential bidders.

Photography

High-quality photography plays a vital role in showcasing the beauty of any supercar or hypercar, capturing the attention of potential buyers at an auction. By using professional photography techniques, you can effectively highlight meticulous details and the overall condition of your vehicle. Close-up shots of key areas, such as the interior, exterior, engine, and wheels, allow viewers to assess the overall investment in the car.

Sourcing the Best Auction Event

Selecting the ideal auction company and event ensures maximum exposure to passionate collectors in your category. Prominent auction houses like RM Sotheby's, Barrett-Jackson, Broad Arrow, and Mecum offer specialized events tailored to specific vehicle types. Researching and understanding their target audience will help you align your car with the right enthusiasts. Choosing the right company ensures that your car finds its way to a receptive audience, increasing the odds of a successful and rewarding sale.

Pricing/Marketing

Thorough research on similar examples either currently on the market or recently sold provides valuable insights into pricing trends and market demand. By setting a competitive price, you position your vehicle attractively among its peers. Additionally, a well-executed marketing campaign will generate interest and drive engagement. By combining strategic pricing with impactful marketing, you increase the likelihood of achieving a favorable outcome at the auction, maximizing the value and potential of your cherished vehicle.

TEMPLE OF SPEED

The Autodromo Nazionale Monza, also known as the Monza Circuit, has a storied history that dates back to its opening in 1922. Nestled in the Royal Villa of Monza Park, this circuit has seen generations of racers and an exhaustive list of automobiles cross its finish line. While most may know Monza for its grand prix circuit, there are three different tracks: the Grand Prix track, the Junior track, and a high-speed oval. One of the most fascinating features of the Monza Circuit has to be the now disused high-speed banking curve that once propelled  $drivers \, to \, high \, speeds. \, Still, \,$  $today, Monza\,is\,regarded\,as\,the$ fastest Formula 1 circuit, giving credence to its nickname, the "Temple of Speed."

Guard your timepieces in high style.

WORDS: Roberta Naas

n an era where timepieces have become not only functional accessories but also valuable investments, watch enthusiasts and collectors are increasingly recognizing the importance of watch safes to protect their prized possessions.

Watch safes are purpose-built to safeguard valuable timepieces from theft, fire damage, and environmental factors. They are often constructed of reinforced steel and equipped with humidity control systems and tamper-proof locking mechanisms. The most sophisticated of these units are designed to meet the needs of watch collectors, combining watch-friendly features with elegant aesthetics. For instance, many are equipped with watch winders to keep certain complicated mechanical timepieces properly wound so they don't need re-setting when the wearer is ready to change wrist wear.

Naturally, watch safes also offer organization and convenience for horophiles with large collections. These beautiful watch safes and large winder boxes can even be displayed in the living room or office, considering many feature luxurious materials and finishes that make them true statement pieces.

Richmond Auctions Brings Two World Class Collections to Market this September

The Marv and Jeanine Spomer Collection is an exceptional museum dedicated to automobilia, petroliana, classic cars, and one of the most impressive neon sign collections you will ever witness. Over nearly 50 years, Marv and Jeanine passionately curated this absolutely incredible collection, and now they have chosen Richmond Auctions as one of the premier outlets to bring it to market.

The Spomer Classics Collection showcases an outstanding selection of rare neon signs, porcelain signs, neon dealership clocks, and gas pump globes. Marv and Jeanine Spomer meticulously assembled this top-notch collection of advertising and classic cars, which were proudly displayed in their museum located in Worthington, MN.

THE SPOMER CLASSICS COLLECTION

RichmondAuctions.com

The Vernon Walker Collection features an exceptional grouping of neon and porcelain signs. Known throughout the hobby for years, Vernon Walker amassed a world-class collection of rare, high-condition pieces that we are very pleased to bring to the market. Walker has been collecting for over 50 years, originally with the intention of creating a museum, but his thoughts changed over time and he began displaying them for his own enjoyment.

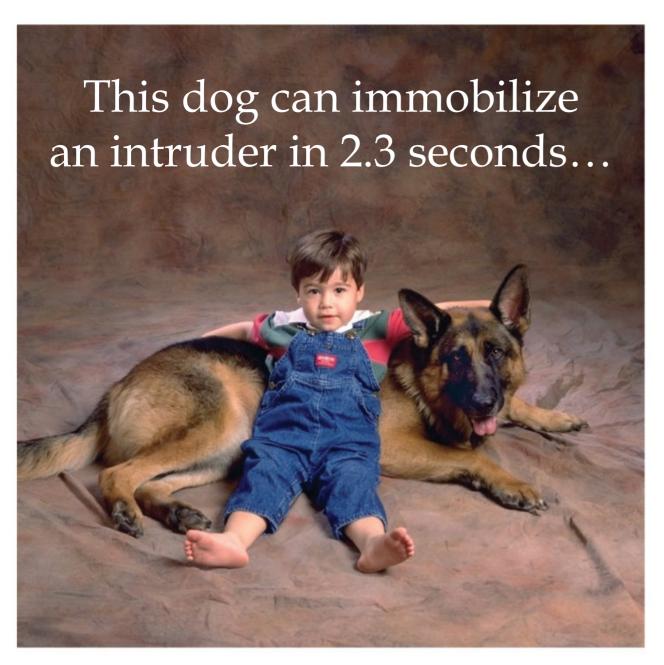

Many of these treasures never made it out of their original shipping crates and were stored in West Memphis, Arkansas. If you have ever traveled through West Memphis on I-40 you probably noticed his building, decorated with neon signs, including a rotating Pegasus neon horse hovering over the roof.

Richmond Auctions will be selling both of these fresh-to-market collections on September 15th & 16th, 2023 in Greenville, SC.

This auction is one of the best memorabilia auctions ever to hit the market and one you do not want to miss!
